They do give you a good insight into the workings, kudos to VW for developing such a study programme, not many manufacturers take care of us enthusiasts like they do.

I thought we are all budding VW technicians though? 🙄 If VW want global domination then they're managers will know full well that enlightening people to their engineering works under a free and mixed market economy is a step in the right direction, especially within the ever lucrative and expanding aftermarket tuning market! There'll be main dealers and specialists everywhere as more and more gather knowledge, roll on a monopoly....a capitalists ultimate goal or healthy market competition and creation of more jobs within a certain field from the Gov's perspective. Contextual perception's a funny thing!

Besides, the legal argument VW would provide would come down to the I.P. Rights assigned to their protected works pursuant to the Berne Convention principles, with said Convention also denoting the freedom of disseminating such protected works under educational principles, therefore denoting a copyleft thereat in reality, which to me is what Self Study Programmes actually means..... besides they can always bill me! 🙄

Think that's what the Norwegians did for Volvo and their "old mans car" rep with their 1000hp+ build's, just a shame it took so long to change the boxy shape - so it's just a matter of time before the other Marques cotton on to such things!

Training of dealer staff (technician / sales) is the primary purpose, although I know that they are distributed to some schools (at least in Germany) as well for similar purposes. Besides they can in my understanding - seen Nr 500 (the Up) with erWin watermark - be bought at the erWin-portal (erwin.volkswagen.de) and obviously found at various other "sources" on the internet after some time...

Most complete list IMHO, however in German, can be found here. Usually SSPs are easier to find in German - typical filename would be ssp6_d1.pdf for part 1 of Nr 6 - and slightly higher quality, given there is no translation. The latter is only relevant if you understand German ofcourse...

Hi RBPE
 Very good post
 New to VW, I am trying to locate the following PDF.
 SSP442 The 1.6ltr. TDI Engine with Common Rail Injection
 System.pdf

But it does not come up on the website you gave. Is there another link?

Thanks
